Providing opportunity for children to experience the rough and tumble play of childhood is one of the most vital things we as educators, parents and clinicians can do for them.

Angela Hanscom, paediatric Occupational Therapist, author and founder of Timbernook, a highly successful, nature-based program for children promotes the outdoors as the ultimate sensory medium for children to challenge their bodies, their senses, their emotions and their social skills. In today's busy, and structured routines, many of our children are missing out on these experiences, especially boys, yet it's what they need most to support development, learning, behaviour and confidence.

Nature Play SA are offering an exciting, but limited opportunity to hear Angela Hanscom and Wendy Pirie on Tuesday 26 March, 1-4pm. Places are strictly limited and tickets will sell out fast, so be quick to secure your spot.

SESSION 1 – HOW OUTDOOR PLAY PREPARES THE CHILD'S MIND AND BODY TO LEARN

Angela will share the fundamental principles that underpin the importance of unrestricted outdoor play for children's development and how it can benefit children with sensory deprivation, unco-ordinated bodies and behavioural issues. Angela will help you bring this approach to your school, workplace or home.

SESSION 2 – SHINING A LIGHT ONE BAREFOOT AT A TIME – HOW OUTDOOR PLAY TRANSFORMS BOYS INTO GOOD MEN

Wendy Pirie is the International Director of Timbernook Australasia, author, educator and Curriculum Developer. Drawing on extensive experience working with children, Wendy will share the connections between self-directed play and healthy, social, physical and emotional development in boys. Wendy will provide tips and ideas on how you can integrate play inside and outside the classroom to positively influence boys' behaviour, learning and social confidence.
